

GUSTAVO MADERO SHOT UNDER "FUGITIVE LAW" BY HIS CAPTORS TODAY

"POWER BEHIND PRESIDENT" DIES WHILE TRYING TO RUN THE GAUNTLET OF HIS ENEMIES' RIFLES THIS MORNING.

HUERTA IS IN CONTROL

Meanwhile President Madero is Confined in the Arsenal a Close Prisoner—Victorious General Will Probably Be President of the Republic.

Mexico City, Feb. 19.—The execution of Gustavo Madero, known as "the power behind the throne," in Mexico formed today a tragic sequel to the upheaval in Mexico City yesterday when Francisco Madero's administration was turned over by the federal generals. The ex-president and his brother were sent this morning as prisoners to the arsenal from which Felix Diaz had bombarded the city for ten days.

Fugitive Law.
Soon after their arrival Gustavo Madero was subjected to the notorious "fugitive law" by which he was free to run under the rifle fire of his guards. He fell dead under their bullets.

Some Speculation.
There is some speculation as to the fate which awaits the ex-president and his cabinet because of the finding of a list of "those who ought to die" among the official documents of the Madero government. It is feared that this may lead to ugly reprisals.

Expected Reprisals.
Had Francisco Madero succeeded in defeating Diaz there seems little doubt that bloody reprisals would have been made.

"Those who should die" is the caption of an official Madero document found last night. On the list of presented there were twenty-two names of prominent men including, as Barra, Jesus Flores, Magon, Manuel Caldero, Alberto Garcia Granados and Dr. Vasquez Gomez.

Expected Assassination.
For some days the Barra believed he was in danger of assassination and therefore hid in the British legation where he heard that numerous threats had been made to capture him. The rebel troops are not to be removed from their positions for two or three days as disorders are feared.
The authorities do not wish to give occasion for public manifestations.

Was Powerful.
Gustavo Madero generally was regarded as a much more powerful man than the president himself. After Francisco Madero had quarreled with Gomez, he and his brother Gustavo turned to the front to take the position of vice president, although he was then little known.

Never Forgiveness.
This was a thing the enemies of Madero never forgave and was really the reason for the starting of the anti-government party which showed systematic opposition to the schemes of the politician, Gustavo Madero.

Americans Wounded.
The list of Americans wounded during the fighting in Mexico City was augmented in the last moment of the fighting yesterday when Miss Bertha Roberts was severely wounded by a fragment of shell and her father, Frederick Roberts, suffered a scalp wound from the same shot. The family have lived in Mexico City for years, coming originally from Maine.
Another sufferer was Thomas Lason, whose mother lives in San Antonio.
He was slightly wounded.

Madero a Prisoner.
Francisco Madero, forced from the presidency by the coup d'etat of two of his generals, is prisoner today in the national palace.

General Huerta who had been commanding Madero's forces against the rebellious troops under General Diaz has been proclaimed governor general of the republic. General Blanquet who aided in the overthrow of Madero is provisional military commander.
These arrangements having been agreed to by General Felix Diaz and the ten days' battle which has been raging with the federal forces is said to be over.

Approval of Populace.
Thousands of men, women and children seemingly gave popular approval to the sudden change in affairs by crowding into the big square in front of the national palace and deliciously shouting "Viva" for the three principles and for Manuel Mondragon who had been conducting the Diaz military operations.

The demonstrations of the night
however, were not without serious disorder. Marco Hernandez, a brother of the minister of the interior, Rafael Hernandez, was killed in the street when he refused to cry "Viva Huerta." A demonstrative crowd surrounded him and insisted that he join in the shouting, but he defiantly called "Viva Madero." He was answered by a pistol of rurales whose bullets killed him instantly.

Hold Vice-President.
Another instance of disorder was the firing of the building occupied by the Nueva Era, a newspaper organ of the Madero administration.

Vice President Jose Pino Suarez, who was also arrested was held prisoner during the night in another part of the palace from which Madero was freed. Each man was under guard of two soldiers.
The members of the cabinet were given parole over night. Senor Juan Sanchez Aschoma, private secretary of Madero, fled the country in an automobile. The deposed president will be treated with all consideration by those who have him within their power, it is declared.

Huerta Promises Safety.

General Huerta promptly sent a message to Mrs. Madero assuring her of the personal safety of her husband and declaring that he would be well treated. It was their determination that the battle in which heavy artillery had been used in the streets since the outbreak of the Diaz mutiny must come to an end which lead groups of senators last night to urge General Huerta to take one stroke that would not only terminate the terrible conflict but at the same time remove the Madero family from public affairs in Mexico.

Arrests Made Quickly.

By two o'clock yesterday afternoon Francisco Madero and his cabinet were with the exception of Ernesto Madero, minister of finance, prisoners.
Ernesto Madero managed to affect his escape a few minutes before General Blanquet's men took the other ministers prisoners in the national palace.
Gustavo Madero, another brother of the president, was also arrested. He had been denounced since the first days of the Madero administration as an arch politician and had been discharged with being a false counselor of the president.

A few hours later General Dolgado and General Angell's two of the federal commanders who were not in accord with General Huerta's plans were added to the list of prisoners.

Guns Celebrate.

The plan had originally been made without the knowledge of General Diaz and his followers and news permeated to the rebel lines where there began a holiday fullscale from the machine guns and rifles such as had not been seen since the opening of hostilities. It appeared that every machine gun and every rifle had been brought into action in an effort to fire all the remaining stores of ammunition there.
It was however merely a celebration of the arrival of the news that peace was near.

The awful din was permitted by the commanders to continue for twenty minutes before the buglers were ordered to sound the "cease fire" signal.
As the noise of the reverberating reports from the guns died away the sound of merry peals from all the church bells of the city rang out. This had been ordered by a message from the national palace.

Overjoyed at Peace.
It did not take the public long to realize what had occurred. Long before the details of the formation of the provisional government under General Huerta had been completely worked out the residents of the capital had begun to give vent to their joy all over the city. The shouts that were sent up were not those of the partisans of a victorious army, but of a people whose nerves had been worn to tatters by enforced participation in a long and desperate battle in the confined space of a great city.

The district about the United States embassy were just as demonstrative as the Latin-Americans.

Well Received.

The fall of the Madero administration and his arrest in Mexico brought about by the well arranged plot of the federal military leaders last night has been received in the capital with general acclamation. It is not known, however, how the rest of the country will receive the change.

Uncle Sam's Part.

The part played by the United States embassy in the settlement of the ten days' battle gained for the American flag such a tribute as never before was witnessed in Mexico. After the messenger from the United States embassy Harry Berlinger had gone through the fire of the rebel lines to the arsenal conveying the message of peace sent by Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson he drove to the national palace in an automobile bearing a white flag on one side, and the stars and stripes on the other.

At The Palace.
By the time he emerged from the national palace after delivering the note to General Huerta the crowd outside had learned the import of his visit. The reappearance of his machine was the signal for a tremendous ovation.

Through an immense mass of humanity gathered in the Zocalo and along San Francisco street the big automobile picked its way slowly amid deafening applause with the stars and stripes flying in the wind.

Viva Los Americanos.

Group after group of the people on the streets caught up the cry, "Viva Los Americanos" till the entire city reverberated with the cheering. For days the entire population of Mexico City had regarded intervention by the United States as practically inevitable.

All Pleased.

Mexicans of the non-combatant class suffered divided emotions of hope and fears. Thousands although deploring intervention by any power had come to the conclusion that the good offices of any nation were preferable to the wanton destruction of property and loss of life, which had been occurring with neither side gaining any apparent advantage.

Huerta Makes Report.

General Victoriano Huerta after all formal arrangements had been signed between him and Diaz went to the American embassy and recounted the story of the event to Ambassador Wilson. The two chatted for some time and expressed their mutual pleasure in the conclusion of the battle.

Election Certain.

The election by congress of General Huerta to the provisional presidency of Mexico is regarded as practically certain. It is said he will appoint Francisco de la Barra his minister of

SEEKS RE-ELECTION ON BROAD PROGRAM OF SCHOOL REFORM

Supt. C. P. Cary Makes Announcement Of His Candidacy and Gives Statement of His Policies.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Feb. 19.—Declaring for a broad program of educational betterment in Wisconsin and to strict adherence to a policy of non-interference with other interests, State Superintendent C. P. Cary issued formal announcement of his candidacy to succeed himself as head of the state school system. His statement is as follows:

Free From Politics.

"I am a candidate for re-election to the office I now hold. Ten years ago the people of this state took the office of state superintendent of schools out of politics, placed the election in the spring along with judges of the supreme court, and provided by law that no candidate for the office should be permitted to use any party name in pressing his candidacy. The impossibility of using a party name indignity, independence, and a reasonable degree of permanence to the position. The state superintendent has kept the office out of politics—not always an easy task. He and his assistants have devoted themselves strictly and with their best energies to the educational matters that come within the sphere of duties and responsibilities of the office. The office is working with the best of reason work for the educational welfare of the state.

"The following are a few of the things the department has labored to improve or secure, and with the help of the people much progress has been made:

Work of Department.

"1. Properly trained teachers. To this end efforts have been made to foster schools and courses for the training of teachers in numerous institutions, county training schools, country school courses in normal schools, a training course in the state university, etc.

"2. Better sanitary conditions in all schools, particularly country schools where such attention was most needed. Hundreds of schools have been ventilated and other sanitary precautions taken.

"3. Better equipment, particularly in country schools. Hundreds of schools have made great improvement in the past few years in this direction.

"4. The adaptation of courses of study to meet community needs in all schools.

"5. The freedom of schools from domination by higher institutions of learning.

"6. Social center work, particularly in country communities.

"7. Consolidation of country districts where this is feasible.

"8. Vocational and part time schools, particularly for those who have been under the necessity of leaving the regular school at an early age.

"9. Improved conditions and better public sentiment in general by means of school board conventions, bulletins, etc.

"10. Improved school architecture, particularly country schools. Plans have been furnished free to school districts with this end in view.

"11. The teaching of agriculture in the country schools, state graded schools and high schools.

"12. The teaching of domestic science and other practical subjects generally.

No Campaign Manager.

"This list might be easily increased.
The work of the department in routine ways, as well as in every other, has grown enormously in the past ten years. The state superintendent does not under the law possess large powers. Much that he accomplishes must be done by argument and permission, not by authority.

"I have no campaign manager and I am so busy with the duties of the office that I find it difficult to give any large amount of time to the matter of my election. I appreciate very greatly the many kind offers of help in bringing about my re-election. I respectfully ask the votes and active help of all who desire a continuance of the kind of service and progressive educational leadership the state superintendent and his assistants have been rendering to the public."

The election occurs April 1.

Birnch, today sent word to the inaugural committee that the plans for his inauguration met with his approval.

that neither Mr. Wilson nor himself had any changes to suggest.

Back at Trenton.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 19.—President-elect Wilson got back to the state house after a brief visit to New York.
Regarding this visit his only explanation was that he had a "bully talk" with Col. E. M. House. Mr. House is not only an intimate friend of the governor, but very close to W. J.
Bryan. The governor's office yesterday was crowded with callers and no one at the state house expected he would cut the day short and go to New York, but he left suddenly at 4:32.

So far as can be learned he saw no one besides Colonel House while in New York.

EMPLOYERS PROTEST AT WEEKLY PAYMENT

One Hundred Men Offer Objections to Bill Introduced by Assemblyman Minkley of Milwaukee.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 19.—Nearly one hundred men from all sections of the state came here yesterday to be heard on the bill introduced by Assemblyman Carl Minkley of Milwaukee which provides for a weekly payment of wages.
The measure has the endorsement of some of the labor unions, more particularly the state federation of labor.
It has the opposition of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association of Milwaukee, and the railroad men of the state.
The hearing was held before the assembly committee on labor.

Former Assemblyman Frank Weber of Milwaukee said that the plan of paying wages weekly has been endorsed by the state federation for the last twenty years. He argued that when a laborer was paid weekly that he did not resort to the credit system in the purchase of his meat and groceries, but paid for the goods when purchased. He pictured to the committee the experience of some of the men who were not paid regularly falling into the hands of the loan sharks.

Attorney James, representing the St.
Paul road, said that if a weekly payment of wages were required of the road it would cost $70,000 more annually in this state alone. He said that this extra money was "not only wasted but worst than wasted." He added that it would be far better to spend this money in improving the infrastructure of the men and improving the service than spend it uselessly. Assemblyman Minkley charged that the reason there were not more railroad employees present asking for the passage of this law was because they were afraid they would lose their jobs. This was denied by George T.
Martin, representing the Machine shops of the Milwaukee road. Martin claimed that this extra burden should not be placed on the railroads. He had heard no demand for it.

Attorney W. H. Timlin of Milwaukee asked that municipalities be exempted from the operation of the law.
He pointed out that the men had to come down town to get their pay and that in the course of a month it paid at the end of the week the man would lose one day's time. Chester D.
Barnes, representing Kenosha Manufacturers' Association, opposed the bill saying that it would upset existing bookkeeping systems in some of the big establishments in the city of Kenosha.

FAIL TO PASS BILL OVER VETO OF TAFT

By a Vote of 213 to 114 House Refuses to Pass Burnett-Dillingham Immigration Measure.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Feb. 19.—The house today refused, by a vote of 213 to 114, to pass the Burnett-Dillingham immigration bill over the president's veto.
Five votes changed from the negative to the affirmative would have given the two-thirds necessary to override the veto.

Not Fearful.

No longer fearful of the possibility of having the senate enter upon a general confirmation of the pending immigration of President Taft, democratic senators have decided to move an executive session at the first opportunity.

"We will confirm the army, navy and diplomatic nominations and possibly some others," said Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia today, in announcing the decisions of his party associates.

Not to Be Forced.

"We have been willing from the first to go that far, but we were determined not to be forced into the consideration of the entire list contrary to our wishes."

Rockefeller Foundation.

The proposed $100,000,000 Rockefeller foundation for benevolent pur-

tion that can be made of that portion of the John D. Rockefeller immense fortune and is the conclusion expressed in a majority opinion from the senate judiciary committee presented to the senate today recommending the passage of the foundation bill.

Call a Conference.

Rep. Burleson, chairman of the democratic caucus, today called a democratic caucus of the incoming house for noon, March 5, to name the democratic members of the ways and means committee of the 63d congress and consider tariff bills.

Secretary McVeigh told the house committee on treasury department expenditures that $35,000,000 in the treasury above current liabilities was a practicable working balance and that in emergencies it could be run below that amount.

The senate interstate commerce committee today voted to report favorably the La Follette-Adams bill for valuation of railroads and all interstate commerce carriers. The republican caucus already has decided to push the bill.

WORLD FAMED SINGER

SEVENTY YEARS OLD

London, Feb. 11.—Adelina Patti, whose fame as a singer has probably never been equalled in the history of the world, was showered with congratulations today on the occasion of her seventieth birthday anniversary. The once incomparable song-bird, who is known in private life as Baroness Cederstrom, looks as youthful as many women of fifty years. Since she disposed of her castle in Wales, the famous diva and her husband have spent much of their time in travel on the continent, though they continue their residence in London and never fail to pass a part of the season here.

Mme. Patti was born of Italian parents at Madrid on February 19, 1843. Her father, Salvatore Patti, a native of Sicily, was of noble extraction, and a musician of considerable eminence. Her mother was the daughter of a celebrated Roman teacher of singing and early in life took a high position on the operatic stage under the professional name of Barili.

Patti's debut in grand opera was made in New York City in 1859, but her first appearance as a singer was made nine years before. Her active career covered a period of fifty years, as it was but a few years ago that she was heard in a farewell concert in London. She is therefore the equal of Rubinstein in length of public career. When Rubinstein died in 1894, men who were fifty at that time were under the impression that the great Rubinstein had long since passed away. While actively engaged at their work Patti and Rubinstein saw two generations of art and artists rise and decline.

For over twenty years Mme. Patti sang at Covent Garden, and filled it to overflowing when she appeared. Her annual earnings between 1861 and 1881 averaged from $150,000 to $175,000 and rose still higher during each of the years in which she made professional tours in North and South America. It is estimated that she earned with her great voice a total of not less than $4,000,000, of which enormous sum she saved a goodly proportion which she is now enjoying in her old age.

EDW. DONEHOE DIES
NEAR CENTURY MARK

Town of Harmony Pioneer Passed Away in City This Morning at Age of Ninety-Seven Years.

Edward Donehoe, for fifty years a resident of the town of Harmony, passed to the world beyond this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. E. Watts, 19 North Main street. Mr. Donehoe passed away at three o'clock this morning after an illness which has extended since last November, gradually growing weaker and weaker, the infirmities of his advanced age, ninety-seven years, being the immediate cause of his demise. Donehoe was born in the county Kerry, Ireland, in 1816. He came to America as a young man, living in New York for a number of years before removing to the west.

EDWARD DONEHOE.

Fifty-five years ago he moved to Rock county and has made his home in the town of Harmony since that date. Before coming to Wisconsin he was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Porter, who preceded him to the world beyond four years ago. This marriage was blessed with six children, Mrs. John Lay of the town of Porter, Edward Donehoe, Jr., Mrs. W. E. Watts of Janesville, Mrs. John Hoffman of Leyden and Patrick and Theresa, who made their home with Mr. Donehoe in the town of Harmony. The funeral will be held Friday morning, with regular high mass at St. Patrick's church at nine thirty. Interment at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Father Pierce of Sharon as deacon and the Rev. Father Mahoney as sub-deacon. The Rev. Dean Reilly gave the sermon. Many friends of the departed were present at the funeral and the floral offerings were numerous. Those who acted as pall bearers were: Edward, Thomas, Grose and William Tracy, Henry Blunk and Edward Fiebelkorn. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Jennie Belton.

Mrs. Jennie Belton, aged seventy-three, passed away at 10:45 o'clock last evening at 221 W. West Milwaukee street as the result of a stroke of paralysis which she suffered last December. Her husband, John Belton, died about twenty years ago. Surviving Mrs. Belton are three sons: Bert and Charles of this city and Frank Glascott of Memphis, Tenn.; a sister, Mrs. Arthur D. Walworth of Minneapolis, Minn.; and a niece, Mrs. J. A. Denison of this city. Funeral services will be held at the Methodist church at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the Rev. T. D. Williams, officiating. Friends of the departed may view the remains at the church between 2:00 and 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be made at Monroe Friday.

CLEANSE YOUR LIVER AND BOWELS WITH DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

REMOVES THE SOUR BILE, GASES AND CLOGGED-UP WASTE WITHOUT GRIPE OR NAUSEA. NO HEADACHE, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS OR COATED TONGUE.

Poul breath, coated tongue, dull throbbing headache, stomach sour and full of gases, indigestion, biliousness and a sallow complexion, mean that your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with waste matter; that these drainage organs of the body are obstructed; liver stagnant and stomach full of poisonous gases, sour bile and undigested fermenting food not properly carried off.

Most of our ailments are caused by constipated bowels. We all need a laxative sometimes; nobody can doubt that. The only question is, which one is the best and that isn't a question any more. Syrup of Figs, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, must act in a harmless gentle and natural way. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without injury. Its action is the action of fruit—of eating coarse food—of taking exercise. It is a true and effective liver and bowel cleanser and regulator.

Most folks dread physic—they shrink from the taste and after-effects. Syrup of Figs is delicious, and besides, you don't realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the clogged up waste of the system is gently but thoroughly moved out and out of the bowels without gripping or weakness.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." This is the old reliable and only genuine. Refuse, with contempt, any other Fig Syrup recommended as good. They are imitations meant to deceive you. Read the label carefully and look for the name California Fig Syrup Company.

Infection and Disinfection

How Physicians Protect Themselves Against Contagious Disease.

There is a notion among the people that the physicians have something to protect themselves from contagious diseases. It is known that the physician goes in and out among diseases that are catching and it is assumed that he has some special means to protect himself. Many people think he has some drug that carries on his person some disinfectant that makes him safe.

This is not true, however. The physician has no potent charm to keep disease away. There are no such remedies. The only protection against disease is good health. To keep in splendid bodily condition is almost a sure preventive to contagious disease.

The successful physician takes care of his body. His skin is clean. And if he has any scratches or open sores he is very careful about coming in contact with anything to infect them. He is careful about his diet. To come into the presence of infection with indigestion is to invite danger. Over eating is a prolific cause of the spread of contagious diseases.

More than all this, however, is the condition of the mucous membranes of the body. The mucous membranes line the nose, the throat, the larynx, the bronchial tubes, the stomach, the bowels, the kidneys. The mucous membranes protect these organs against infection. If the mucous membranes are perfectly normal, if they are doing their function as they should, there is no danger of infection from that source.

The most common derangement of the mucous membranes is catarrh. Catarrh produces a condition of the mucous membrane which disables it from protecting the system. Poisons are easily absorbed through the mucous membrane. If there is any catarrhal congestion.

What is still worse, the catarrh will produce small ulcers on the mucous membrane. Sometimes these ulcers are so small as to be invisible to the naked eye. Others are large producing white patches of some size. Such a mucous membrane will absorb any poison with which it comes in contact. The physician strives to keep the mucous membranes free from catarrh. He knows very well if he exposes himself to disease with catarrhal mucous membranes he cannot hope to escape infection.

There are different remedies recommended to produce this result. But the remedy that will really keep the mucous membranes healthy, the remedy I use myself, the remedy I recommend to my patients, to my friends, is PERUNA. Peruna, if taken properly, will protect the mucous membranes from catarrh. This will enable the mucous membranes to protect the body from contagious diseases.

If I were practicing among contagious and infectious diseases today I should take Peruna every day. I insure a perfect condition of health. There is no disinfectant strong enough to kill disease germs that will not at the same time injure the human body. Therefore, good health of body, inside and out, is the only hope of the physician or any one else as a preventive against contagious diseases.

LINK AND PIN
AUTOMATIC STOKERS
USED IN THE EAST

Latest Labor-saving Device on Locomotives Promises to Be Generally Installed.

There are two new patents upon the market at present, which are liable to revolutionize the railroad locomotive. The newest improvement is the stokers which are being adopted on many of the western roads where they have been found practical in every case. They have been found to deliver and distribute over the grate necessary coal up to 10,000 pounds per hour, enough to fire any locomotive at maximum capacity. One eastern railroad has ordered their line equipped with these stokers and railroad officials will watch with interest the outcome of their experiment. The manufacturers of these stokers claim they will do away with the necessity of a skilled fireman. A fireman will be needed to watch the working of the machinery and will have more time to tend to watching of signals and helping the engineer.

The other improvement is the new oil-burning locomotives which are being used in the southern states and to some extent in the foreign countries. If these engines were to be adopted universally it would mean a radical change from the present system of running a railroad. The oil-burning engines are yet in their infancy but promise to become the standard type of locomotives in the future. They would do away with the great smoke evil which is being condemned by city officials throughout the United States. The coal industry would lose a heavy customer if these locomotives are found practical, while the oil companies could build a few more colleges and works of art. The oil-burners in their tests have developed as much speed and drawing power as their steam-propelled rivals. They are smaller in size and the cost of maintaining them is greatly reduced.

DOUBLE TRACKING OF THE ST. PAUL LINE

Pushing Work of Double Tracking Line Between Minneapolis and Aberdeen.

The St. Paul railroad is building a double track between Minneapolis and Aberdeen, S. D., as rapidly as possible, notwithstanding difficulty of doing effective work with such low temperature. The significance of this work is in the relation it bears to the operation of the Pacific coast extension. One of the first things mentioned when the Great Sound extension began to handle big tonnage was that the wear of the great movement was going to be the heaviest in territory close to Minneapolis, of any place on the entire system, excepting possibly some Chicago territory or territories closely adjacent. The first move by way of provision for this was construction of the Cologne cutoff, and development of an important terminal at Farmington, a point south of St. Paul, by which a through freight train might move east or west without touching the twin cities at all and this has been operating effectively for some time. The plan to double track from Minneapolis to Aberdeen on the old straight line was announced last summer and much of the work is finished.

March 1 the road will begin its work of track lowering in Minneapolis. This is a big undertaking. It was started last year but was suspended when the big grain crop came on because the management figured it could not possibly handle the inbound grain and do the work at the same time.

Warning has been issued to the conductors and engineers of freight trains and their speed. The bulletin states that all freight trains with

BY C. A. VOIGHT.

Sport Shop Shots

There has lately been great rivalry between the girls' basketball teams of two Pennsylvania towns—Big Bend and Wehrum. Not long ago the Big Bend team went to Wehrum determined to avenge their defeat. They had borrowed for the occasion a first-class player who was entered in the game as "Miss Herrick," but whose real appellation was supposed to be unknown.

During the warming up practice it was evident that Miss Herrick was some wonder on the floor. The Wehrum girls, growing suspicious, suddenly rushed Miss Herrick into a corner, snatched off "her" wig and discovered Bill Jones, one of the huskiest basketball players in the country. The Big Bend girls say they will get even if it takes all winter.

ington club, "I'd breeze home with the American league flag. But there isn't a chance to grab a first-class southpaw now. I believe the race is finding out with the present crop and there are none left in the game. I raked the minor league field last year and there wasn't a left-hander in sight—not one any worth and only a few of even ordinary ability. I need a southpaw but couldn't buy one for a million dollars."

Glenn Warner, the coach of the Carlisle Indian school athletes, is not so much cast down over losing Jim Thorpe, as might be expected. Of course he feels very sorry, but another Thorpe—Jim's younger brother—has come to take the big braves place. The brother is but fourteen. He's hard to tell just what he will develop into, but the very sight of him is said to have brought joy to Warner's heart. Warner has a corner, too, in Guyon, the big football tackle who made a tremendous sensation on the gridiron last fall. The coach is confident that Guyon has wonderful possibilities as a truck and field athlete. He is big and strong and can run like the wind.

Johnny Coulon is determined to hold the bantamweight championship a couple of months longer anyway. He has notified Promoter Tom McCarty that he will not be in shape to fight "Kid" Williams, the Baltimore bird, until after the middle of April. Johnny says his physician advises against his going up against Williams until he (Coulon) is in better physical trim.

CARDINALS TO MEET CHAMPS OF MILWAUKEE FRIDAY

Milwaukee will make its first appearance in the basketball line here Friday night, when a picked team from two of the city league towns will clash with the Cardinals. These two teams are recognized as the best in the Cream City and taking the pick of these two teams will make an aggregation of players that will cause the Cardinals to put forth their best efforts to win. Not much is known as to the strength of these players, as none of the Milwaukee teams play, to any great extent, outside of their immediate territory. They have played teams in their own city and are undefeated, claiming championship of Milwaukee. The Lakotas have improved in their playing at least twenty-five percent and with the addition of Green the team presents a formidable appearance. The game will be played Friday night as for on Saturday night a special car will bring a crowd of Rockford skaters to spend the evening at the Jamesville Auditorium. The ring will have a busy week for tonight Kenosha will play with the local Moose team in roller polo. As both teams have won a game and Jamesville is fighting with all possible force to overcome the lead of Racine the game will be bitterly fought by both teams. The Jamesville team has improved to such an extent that a victory should be easy for the locals and they have sufficiently recuperated from their strenuous trip to play with wind ball. If Jamesville wins this game it will place her within striking distance of the lead.

Homes Wrecked.
Hundreds of American residents and other foreigners returned today from their refuge around the United States embassy to their homes in various parts of the city. Many found their residences wrecked by shells. Scarcely a house had escaped being hit by rifle bullets and many of them had been looted by mobs of soldiers.

Huerta's Dispatch.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—President Taft today received the following telegram from Victoriano Huerta, Mexico provisional governor general: "I have the honor to inform you that I have overthrown this government. The forces are with me, and from now on peace and prosperity will reign. Your obedient servant, 'VICTORIANO HUERTA, 'Commander-in-chief."

Cancel Bookings.
Americans who fled in terror from Mexico City to embark from Vera Cruz for the United States, are canceling their bookings on steamships. Consul Canada continues to supervise the work of caring for all refugees who sought safety there. Consul General Shanklin, at Mexico City, reports in answer to inquiries, that the following Americans are safe:

List of Notables.
Jefferson D. Smith and wife, William Prim Wood, Archie R. Wood, Wesley A. Price and family, Fred Shelton, B. C. Muckelbauer and wife, and H. A. DeLina. He says Jorge Whitteley and family are at Vera Cruz. Miss Ellen Hoer is safe with friends at Santiago, and P. L. Starat and wife of Corvallen are also safe. Sidney Sutherland, who was slightly wounded, left for the United States Sunday night via Vera Cruz.

Relax Preparations.
While military and naval preparations for the dispatch of forces to Mexican waters or nearby points such as Guantanamo were relaxed today, sufficient data has been gathered by the strategists for an interesting study of the responsiveness of the new scheme of brigade organization of the army. It is believed the results have been eminently satisfactory showing a marked increase in the mobility of the land forces as compared with the conditions existing as recently as two years ago.

Are Relieved.
Although plans will be set in action in case of an emergency, the United States government is today distinctly relieved at the over night news from Mexico telling of the deposition of President Madero and the apparent settlement of the civil war that swept the capital itself.

Fear Expressed.
It was feared, however, that residents under the protection of that government were still in danger. Gathered under the avowed declaration that there were to be mobilized for practice with the Atlantic fleet at Guantanamo, Cuba, two thousand marines will be dispatched to that port as originally ordered unless there is good reason for their recall.

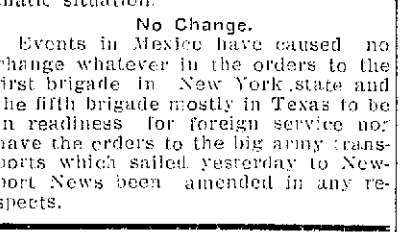

No Change Made.
Such an order was not apparent today. The navy department also denied that it had issued any orders in any way setting aside the original plan of action. Officials feel that this government has been at least temporarily released from a difficult diplomatic situation.

No Change.
Events in Mexico have caused no change whatever in the orders to the first brigade in New York state and the first brigade mostly in Texas to be in readiness for foreign service nor have the orders to the big army transports which sailed yesterday to Newport News been amended in any respects.

The Theatre

"THE GIRL AT THE GATE."

"The Girl at the Gate," the newest and best of the La Salle Opera House successes, and which has been on view at this cozy little theatre for the past six months, takes to the road February 20th, in order that the directors of the La Salle Opera House can put into execution plans that have already been drafted to convert this popular "temple of fun" into a ground-floor theatre. "The Girl at the Gate" is the work of Mr. Will M. Hough, who is responsible for many of the La Salle successes. Mr. Frederick Donaghey, part author of "Louisiana Lou," and clever Ben M. Jerome, composer of "Louisiana Lou" and "He Came From Milwaukee." Manager Harry Askin of the La Salle Opera House has assembled for "The Girl at the Gate" what he considers the best musical comedy company in the world, and which includes Herbert Cortbell, Lucy Weston, Cathryn Rowe Palmer, Will Phillips, Ivy Troutman, Forrest Winant, Mortimer Weldon, Grethchen Kaschman and Charles Mast.

"The Girl at the Gate" will be seen at the Myers Theatre, Thursday Feb. 20.

PAUL J. RAINEY'S AFRICAN HUNT PICTURES.

Motion pictures have furnished much in the way of interesting entertainment to the public in the course of the past few years, but seldom has the opportunity been offered to witness a more remarkable collection than those which were taken of Paul J. Rainey's African hunt, soon to be shown at the Myers Theatre.

The wild beasts of the jungle, the lion, the elephant, the rhinoceros, the giraffe, and other animals which make their home near the equator, seen only perhaps in captivity or in drawings, are shown in their native haunts.

Mr. Rainey's hunting trip to Africa, the exciting incidents which marked his search for the wild beasts of the jungle right to their very haunts and the trophies including many live specimens of the denizens of the equator which he brought back, is a story that has already been given to the public. There is no nature taking in the motion pictures of the Rainey Expedition into the jungle. Neither is there any posing. The lion is shown trailed to his lair by the American dogs which accompanied the party. The king of the forest is run to earth and actually killed by trained Mississippi hounds. Among the most interesting views shown by the motion pictures, are the animals at the water hole. The water-hole within ten degrees of the equator, furnishes water to the wild beasts, which make their way to it for hundreds of miles. Pictures of the expedition, including the small army of natives which accompanied the party, the many thrilling escapes of the photographers in their quest for something out of the ordinary, are all shown in the pictures which can safely be said to be an extraordinary addition to natural science.

"A GIRL OF THE MOUNTAINS."

"A Girl of the Mountains," the four act society drama by Leon E. Parker is something new, something worth seeing, at the Myers Theatre, Sunday, February 23rd, matinee and evening. It develops a strong plot with very dramatic situations in such a delicate and picturesque style that one must at once place it far above the ordinary drama. An especially strong scene, one that will grip its hearers, is brought about when Nellie, the Mountain Girl, discovers that she has been betrayed by Richard Thurston, a wealthy New Yorker. The scene is most graphic and telling and bound to commend unflinching attention. The critics of the country have praised "The Girl of the Mountains" until its name is second to none. The public, which pays its good money to be entertained at the theatre has seen, marvelled and commended in pleasing terms. There is nothing more to be said but go and see it.

NO INTERVENTION.

There will be no need for intervention in Mexico after all if the latest dispatches which announce Madero has resigned, or rather is a prisoner; that Diaz, his opponent, has agreed to accept General Huerta as the president pro temp, and that both rebel and federal armies are to work in accord.
However, it is evident that President Taft does not intend to take any chances in the matter and the preparation for any emergency will continue.
An exchange, in commenting upon the situation, handles it in the following manner:

"There can be no useful purpose in belittling the gravity of the situation in Mexico City. Mexico has been the arena of armed contention since the autocratic rule of Porfirio Diaz was exchanged for that kind of popular government which is not popular and does not govern. There is a section which is prepared to take up arms against any conceivable president; and it seems impossible to devise a solution which will satisfy everybody, or everybody capable of bearing arms.

"And yet there is a wide difference between intervention by the United States and mediation. Intervention by a foreign power in a country where a state of civil war exists, whatever its motive may be, is in effect an armed invasion of that country. Nothing could be better calculated to unite all Mexico than armed intervention of the United States at this time. We, of all people, should remember what armed intervention would have meant in the war of the secession.

"Mediation is a different matter;
and it is to be suspected that many people who use the word 'intervention' really mean mediation, and do not realize the radical difference between the two words, in their international sense. This country can do much by methods of peace to safeguard the lives of its citizens and those of other countries, by mediation between the parties in conflict. Nothing better calculated to endanger the lives of every foreign citizen and subject in Mexico than armed invasion of that country by the United States could be imagined.

"But suppose our mediation should begin at home? Commercial and financial interests in Mexico represent a highly speculative investment by this country, considerably exceeding one billion dollars. This is more than twice that of Great Britain, Mexico's second largest creditor, and far exceeds that of any other country. We could safeguard the interests of these investors, or speculators, it is true, but at what incalculable cost? Owners of oil concessions, mining rights and railway franchises, safe at home, would have little enough to disturb their serenity while Uncle Sam pulled the chestnuts out of the fire.
"But what of the American citizen employed in Mexico about his lawful occupations? What of the subjugation of a country whose every citizen would resent our control? Why not begin our mediation by an investigation of the sources from which insurrections are financed? Bullets for magazine rifles do not grow on trees;
and there is no arms factory in Mexico. Cannot we restore order there by a little mediation with the ill-bustlers employed by others less daring but equally unscrupulous, who design to make bad investments good at the expenditure of millions of the taxpayers' money and thousands of our soldiers' lives."

NOT WINNING.

Officially, at least, the Turks seem to derive much satisfaction from the way their troops die in battle. A great deal is said in the government's statements of the fortitude with which losses are borne and hardships endured.

That is all very well in its place, as evidence of national stamina and heroism, and it may serve to inspire a fair degree of fervor for war among men not yet in the field. But at the most and best it falls far short of winning decisive victories. It does not open the way to a satisfactory peace.

Long ago a Greek of sporting tastes promised to give Cleomenes cocks that would "die fighting." "Prithee," was the reply, "give me cocks that will kill fighting." The Turkish government, for want of anything better, makes over-much of the kind of soldiers that will die fighting, but what it needs is an army that will win fighting.

Non-partizan candidates for the board of supervisors may bring about a new condition of affairs in Janesville. Too little attention has always been paid to the selection of supervisors and members of the school board by those who are most vitally interested.

The state authorities have taken a hand in the untangling of the local conditions relative to work of the humane society. Prompt action in many cases will teach the average citizen that it is a bad thing to monkey with the law.

Considering some of the snapshots of Mr. Wilson that have been published, it ought not to be wondered at that he told a photographer who was trailing him that he was no gentleman.

There is to be no railroad strike in the east after all. The railroads state the public would not stand for it. This is the first victory for the voice of the people.

Ashland has adopted the commission form of government—recall proposition and all. A year ago they turned it down by a decisive vote, but this time they accepted it.

A West Virginia lawyer referred to a wealthy widow in court as a modern Cleopatra. Probably he had discovered that she had souked her pearls.

Woodrow Wilson has been given passes to all the league games in Washington next season. Another incentive for the American boy to aim high.

An eastern preacher is advocating applause in his church services. But will he know what it means when it comes at the end of a sermon?

Boy bandits who shoot people at will when at large usually are profuse with tears when captured and confined in cells awaiting trial.

The chief consideration in the divorcing of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads seems to be the size of the alimony.

New York suffragists are pasting
"votes for women" labels on eggs.
Evidently they desire for them only a limited circulation.

Why worry over Mr. Wilson's silence concerning his cabinet? We shall soon know the make-up of all the big league teams.

Going to prison seems to have become so common with the London suffragists as to have lost its attractiveness.

Castro is intending to remain in the United States, having provided his own invitation and put his foot inside the door.

If all the fool bills presented in the legislature should be passed it would take Wisconsin lawyers years to untangle the mix-up.

This is the time of the year the baseball fans begin to wonder when the season is really going to open.

Thus far none of the baseball teams have gone into training south of the Ilo Grande this season.

If Carnegie really wants to pension somebody there is Manuel, who used to be King of Portugal.

Those Turks who want to continue the war are not in the firing line as most certain.

Awake.

"That man talks a great deal, but you must admit that he's wide awake."
"Well," replied Farmer Cornstossel, reflectively, "you couldn't expect a man to fall asleep during one of his own speeches."

DR. STEPHEN SMITH
NINETY YEARS OLD

"Grand Old Man" of American Medical Profession Creator of New York Health Department.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Feb. 19.—Dr. Stephen Smith, who has been termed the "grand old man" of the American medical profession, celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary today at his home in this city. Dr. Smith was one of the first Americans to appreciate the important necessity of organized efforts for the conservation of the public health. As early as 1865 he made an exhaustive investigation into the sanitary condition of New York, and from 1868 to 1875 he was Commissioner of Health in New York City. He was the founder and first president of the American Public Health Association, and the creator of both the Health Department of New York State and the New York State Lunacy Commission. At ninety years of age he continues to take an active interest in matters relating to his profession and is a frequent contributor to the medical journals.

NEW YORK DOG SHOW SETS RECORD FOR SIZE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Feb. 18.—Nearly three thousand aristocratic dogs, representing every breed known to the fancier, are in the hands of the judges at the thirty-seventh annual bench show of the Westminster Kennel Club, which opened in the Grand Central Palace today. It is the most extensive exhibition of dogs ever show in this country. In competition with the best of the domestic bred dogs are scores of pedigreed canines recently imported from England, Scotland and Ireland.
For the first time in the history of the club, bulldogs head the list of entries.
The growth of the popularity of this breed is shown by a total of 139 entries, which is fifty more than last year. Among the number are several of the former British champions recently brought to this country by Arnold Lawson of Boston. Alredale terriers occupy second place on the list of entries. Other breeds well represented are the collies, Irish terriers, dachshunds and Boston Terriers.

JOHN WESTON WAIVES HAVING EXAMINATION

Jury For Trial Will be Drawn on Monday, March 2—Defendant Twenty-four Years Old Today.

Through his attorney, John L. Fisher, John H. Weston, charged with embezzlement from his former employers the Rock River Woolen Mills, this afternoon waived his right to an examination and his trial on for Monday, March 2. The jury will be drawn at this time and the introduction of evidence will probably be begun the following day. Weston's examination had been set for ten o'clock this morning but at the mutual request of District Attorney Dunwiddie and the defendant's counsel Judge Field granted an adjournment until two o'clock this afternoon. The Judge expressed his reluctance to grant a further adjournment as the case had already been three times postponed, but both sides assured him that the slight additional adjournment would result in the saving of a day's time for the court. The waiving of the examination was the result of the conference of the attorneys and their examination of the company's records.

Attorney Fisher requested that the bail of Weston be reduced from $500 to $1,000 as he has reason to believe that friends of Weston would offer that sum, but Judge Field declined to grant the request in view of the peculiar circumstances surrounding the case.

On the motion of Mr. Dunwiddie it was decided to leave the books and records of the Woolen Mills to be introduced as evidence in the case in the custody of the Clerk of the Court, and the defendant's counsel was to be allowed to examine them in the presence of the District Attorney.

Weston, the defendant, celebrated his twenty-fourth birthday today. He examined with considerable interest a warrant for his arrest issued by John McCleary, Magistrate of Court No. 3, Philadelphia, in which he is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and with forgery. The complainant is John Wanner, president of the Dobbins Soap Manufacturing Company in that city. No arrest will be made on this warrant while Weston is held for trial on the charges preferred against him in the Janesville municipal court.

MANY CITIZENSHIP CASES SCHEDULED

One Hundred Five Applications For Second Papers Will be Heard at Coming Term of Court.

In addition to the jury and court cases on the February circuit court calendar there are one hundred and five citizenship applications which will be heard on Tuesday, Feb. 25, before Judge Grimm. A representative of the Chicago naturalization office will be present to conduct the examination on the part of the government. This is practically the same number as were heard at the November term of the court. In many of these cases the applicant took out his first papers a number of years ago and now he seeks to become a citizen before he is effected by the new law now in effect.

WEIGHTS ORDINANCE HAS FIRST READING

Measures Introduced at Meeting of City Council Yesterday Supplementing State Law.

First and second reading to an ordinance relating to weights and measures were given at the meeting of the City Council yesterday afternoon. The ordinance differs but little from the state law covering the same field and its purpose is to supplement that measure and facilitate its enforcement by giving the city the right to prosecute violators. It is the desire of the State Sealer of Weights and Measures that each city had its own weights and measures ordinance.

With this enacted, the City Attorney instead of the District Attorney will conduct prosecutions. Janesville has never before had a weights and measures ordinance. An unsuccessful attempt was made to pass one over a year ago.

MID-WINTER FAIR IS BEING ARRANGED FOR Annual Exhibits at Auditorium to be Held First Week in March—Many Entries Expected.

Plans for the Mid-Winter Fair to be held at the Auditorium the first week in March are well under way and Secretary F. E. Lane of the Commercial club expects that the entries this year will far exceed those of fifteen years ago. Joseph Connor, Louis Levy and F. E. Lane this morning were at work securing the prizes to be offered in the various contests, meeting with ready response from the merchants of the city. The fame of the exhibit last year will make the work of securing entries much easier and many of last year's competitors have already made plans to compete again. There will be special prizes as well as premiums in various classes and the show should prove most interesting to the public as well as to those competing.

MACVEAGH ORDERS NEW NICKELS COINED

Slot Machine Makers' Protest Overruled by Secretary of Treasury—Designs Will Appear Soon.

Despite objections on the part of certain slot machine interests, Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh yesterday ordered the coinage of the new nickel bearing an Indian head on the obverse and an American bison on the reverse side.

Coinage of the new 5-cent piece was to have begun on Feb. 1, but was delayed on account of a storm of protests from makers of slot machines, who claimed that their mechanical devices, perfected to throw out spurious coins, would have to be rebuilt entirely. These protests dwindled to one manufacturer, however, and treasury officials held that this was not controlling on the government.

The new nickel, is from a design made by J. E. Fraser of New York, a well known sculptor and medalist. Mr. Fraser decided that the new nickel should represent something strictly American in its conception. The old nickel bears a head of the Goddess Liberty on the face and a Roman V on the reverse. Therefore he chose the Indian and bison both of which are disappearing.

On the obverse side of the coin is the head of a Cheyenne Indian chief without his war bonnet, but with two feathers fastened in his hair. On the margin is the word "Liberty" and below the head is the year "1913."

On the other side above the bison are the words "United States of America" and beneath these in very small letters is the motto "E pluribus unum." Under the bison are the words "Five cents." The old Roman V and the word "nickel" do not appear.

The new design will be in use for twenty-five years, according to the rules of the treasury department. Last year $1,790,000 in nickels were minted, but so far this year no coins of the old design have been struck off.

There is always a big demand for a new coin by the banks throughout

Every Dollar You Spend

Might become two dollars in time if you put it at compound interest at the "Rock County Savings."

You may think it takes a long time; that depends on from which end of the period you view it. Looking backward, the time it takes for a dollar to double itself does not seem very long. Nothing is more certain, however, than the fact that when every saved dollar has become two without any effort on your part, you will harbor no regrets at having saved it.

ated by the Imperial government two years ago to consider and report on the resources, production, trade, manufactures, etc., of each part of the British empire. Aside from this, it is generally believed that Mr. Foster's trip has an important connection with the campaign now on for the extension of Canadian commerce. Whether he is empowered, as has been reported, to negotiate a trade agreement between Canada and Australia is a disputed question, but it is known that after leaving Australia he will pay official visits to China and Japan with the object of investigating the possibilities of Canadian commerce in those two countries.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THAT QUEER THING CALLED HAPPINESS.

THIS morning I laid aside my work and went to walk. You see, it was this way—in the first place the postman brought me three letters from very unhappy folks. Two were from letter friends. One was unhappy because two men were in love with her and she couldn't decide which she liked best; the other was distressed because her family didn't understand her temperament. The third letter was from a personal friend who bemoaned her miserable fate in having to live in a boarding house where they had too much fish and she couldn't have a private bath.

On top of all this depressing news I had several serious troubles of my own, such as finding that my new waist didn't fit in the back and that one of my best dishes had been chipped.

Wherefore, as I said before, I left my work and went out to walk to try to forget all the trouble and unhappiness that seemed to fill the world.

As I came out of the house two girls passed by. One of them had a terrible scar half across her face. I turned away so as not to appear to see it, as one instinctively does, but before I turned I saw the girl break into a jolly laugh at something her companion said.

It was just before noon, and as I passed down a side street I met a stream of girls coming from a factory. Practically all of them were tired and sickly looking, but one stood out from the rest because she looked so unspeakably wan and tired. She wore a cheap and ugly black dress, a battered hat and no gloves. I was just meditating on the utter dreariness of her life when her face suddenly broke into a thoroughly happy smile as she returned the greeting of a very seedy young man who was coming across the street to speak to her.

My errand was at my washerwoman's. Next door lives a poor little widow whose husband was killed by a train a few weeks ago. She has three babies under five to support. She was standing in front of the house talking to a neighbor, with the youngest child in her arms. The baby pulled her hair and she laughed as she untangled the naughty fingers.

On the way back I saw a little lame boy sitting on the curbstone. In the street a dozen normal children romped and ran and shouted. One of them stumbled over him and he took up his crutch and moved back in the doorway. As he sat there the gauntest, most miserable looking alley cat I ever saw slunk up to him. He put out his hand and stroked it. The creature shrank at first, but finding she was actually receiving kindness instead of blows, humped herself up against his hand and began to purr and—yes, you may sneer if you want to—smiled up at him. And at that, the little lame boy laughed outright with pleasure.

It's a queer world, isn't it? And a very queer thing, this state of mind we call happiness.

When I got back home I threw those three letters into the waste-basket and with them my own annoyances.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

The Feminine Privilege of Being Late

HE sat in the motor, patiently waiting for her to make her appearance. He had started his engine once, when he thought she was about ready. But as she didn't come, he let it stop.

At last she came out; and then, after the door was closed, she remembered something she had forgotten, and he had to climb out of the tute, and open the house door with his latch key, so she could go back.

He was used to all this. Every time she went anywhere, this was always the program. At first, he had stormed and said things, and got all worked up inside and out. But as it did no good, he finally became resigned.

For she was one of those women who think it is a feminine privilege to be late. In fact, she had some foolish notions in her head that by doing such feminine things, she was being womanly.

She rather prided herself on being unbusinesslike and helpless, and requiring clear, masculine judgment, and strong, masculine arms to come to her assistance.

But, really, aren't such notions exploded? Haven't they disappeared into their air, for the nothingness they always were?

Where is there any attraction about habits that simply annoy and irritate?

How is a person being womanly by selfishly, or thoughtlessly, keeping a person waiting, when a definite time has been stated for an engagement.

And if this is being womanly, isn't it time to get new standards for womanliness?

There may have been a time when helplessness and general imbecility added charm to women. But, "the world do move." And if that ever existed, it certainly belongs to the past. It is not of the present.

The world today has little regard for the woman who is always unpunctual, who continually calls upon those about her to wait upon her, and help her, and do the things she could easily do, if she would.

Womanliness today has a different meaning. It signifies all the love and gentleness, and tenderness, and sympathy, one expects from the feminine nature; but it also signifies capability, poise, and self-reliance.

Woman has left behind her the incapable stage which shows it was not an integral part of her nature, but a matter of training and environment. And the woman who wants today to impress others with a sense of her womanliness, will not do it by being helpless, and ineffectual. But she will do it by being sweet and lovable, capable and purposeful.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

The Table
Swiss Omelet—My husband is Swiss and he is the lover of this omelet. One large hand full chives cut in one-eighth inch pieces, one egg, little salt, tablespoon flour, half cup milk; stir all together, pour in hot skillet in which there is tablespoon smoking hot fat. This is fit for a king.

Breakfast Dish—One pint cheapest rice, wash well, boil half hour in five quarts water, add one tablespoon salt and two tablespoons sugar. Thicken with corn meal and cook half hour. Mould and fry for breakfast. Costs little and is palatable.

Cold Slaw Without Cream—Cut cabbage as for cold slaw, and suit, then take one heaping tablespoon lard and one tablespoon flour, place in skillet and put on fire, stirring till it becomes a nice light brown; add lukewarm water and vinegar and sugar to suit taste, and while quite warm pour over cabbage.

Crumble Cake—Put three cups sifted flour in mixing bowl 1 1/2 cups dark brown sugar and four or five teaspoons baker's chocolate or cocoa; stir all together, then add one-half cup butter (or butter and lard mixed) and rub together as for pie dough. Add one cup buttermilk or sour milk, pinch salt; beat all together. Grease pan, place batter on, bake in slow oven. Can use any plain white frosting.

Coffee Economy.
In your coffee pot put three cups of water to boil.

Take five teaspoons ground coffee and one cup skimmed milk; mix together, add to boiling water, then let all boil about one minute; settle with one-half cup cold water. Cover and let stand three to five minutes. Very good and cheap.

Things Worth Knowing.

Every Woman Knows how annoying it is to have hooks and buttons catch in the hair while dressing. After my hair is dressed I place my breakfast cap on and then proceed to dress. After being completely dressed, I remove the cap and find my hair all right.

To Hide The Buttons on a corset cover so they will not show through the waists, make tiny rosettes of lace and sew to the edge of each buttonhole.

If Hemstitched Article has much hard wear the fine threads are apt to break and the hem will tear away. To renovate such a piece, take twisted embroidery cotton or battenburg thread and feather stitch over hem, catching each side firmly. Looks well and prolongs the wear indefinitely.

To Remove Gloss and Shine from garments, rub first with a worn silk handkerchief, then rub every paper against the fabric hard enough to raise the nap.

When Making drawn thread work fix sewing machine stitch to the required size, then sew through center of drawn threads. After hemstitching, the machine threads can be easily removed.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

WITHOUT distinction, without procrastination, love-lavish upon the poor, where it is very easy; especially upon the rich, who often need it most; most of all upon our equals, where it is very difficult, and for whom perhaps we each do least of all.

—Drummond.

RICE COMBINATIONS.

Rice may be eaten plain, with a little seasoning, as a vegetable, taking the place of potatoes, or it may be served in combination with any number of fruits, meats and vegetables. Rice is highly nitrogenous food, and when combined with seasoning and other forms of food makes a good diet.

Rice and Parsley.—Cook three-fourths of a cup of rice in three quarts of water until tender, drain well and return to the kettle with three tablespoons of melted butter and two of chopped parsley. Mix well with a fork and keep hot until ready to serve. Serve as a vegetable.

Onions Stuffed With Rice.—Parboil a sufficient quantity of good sized onions, remove the centers and chop; mix the onions with cooked rice, season with melted butter, pepper and salt, and stuff the centers with the mixture. Bake and baste with water and butter. Serve as a garnish for pork chops.

Cold boiled rice that has been sweetened, then served with bananas and sweetened whipped cream, makes a delightful dessert.

Rice and Coconut Custard.—Put half a cup of well washed rice into a double boiler with three pints of milk, cook until very soft, then set aside to cool. Beat three eggs, leaving out the white of one; add a cup of sugar and a cup of fresh grated coconut. Stir into the cold rice mixture and bake in the oven. Cover with a meringue made of the beaten white and two tablespoons of powdered sugar. Brown, and serve with whipped cream.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By Dr. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

KEEP CHILD'S DIET SIMPLE.

"Children are often taught to eat foods that are unsuited to them, and no doubt many of the diathetic diseases, such as gout and rheumatism, might be avoided if a proper diet could be instituted early enough," says Dr. Charles J. McAllister (London Journal of Public Health). It is not necessary that children should be taught to eat the various articles of food that are found on the tables of the rich. Most of us have had to learn to eat certain things for which we had a distaste. If the opposite practice were followed, it would be much better for the health of the child. A few simple foods are better for anybody than a great variety, in childhood and adult life as in infancy.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Is it right for a boy of 19 to go to a dance when his girl does not go? (2)—Is it right for a boy to stop dancing because his girl doesn't want to dance? (3)—What is the best way to tell a girl that you do not want to keep company with her any more, without making her mad? (4)—What kind of necktie should be worn with a blue serge suit?

(1)—If he is very fond of her he probably will not want to go without her. Otherwise, there is no reason why he shouldn't. (2)—If a girl doesn't dance, you shouldn't take her to a dance. If she doesn't want to dance and you are her escort, it's up to you to look after her and consider her convenience before anybody else's.

(3)—Now you've asked me a hard one. I don't know of any way to do that without making the girl mad or hurting her a great deal—unless she wants to get rid of you. Then the sooner you quit her the better pleased she is. (4)—Dark red, or mixtures of dark red and white, or blue and white.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Is it proper to let a young gentleman you have known only two weeks, hold your hand? (2)—Is it proper to let your beau stay till one o'clock if your mother is not home and you are not chaperoned? (3)—I have seen a young gentleman several times. Would like to meet him. How could I do it? (4)—When will they wear the half pompadour again? Is it becoming to a stout person? (5)—Is it injurious to wear a corset tight-laced? (6)—Please give me a good cornbread recipe.

(1)—There's no particular harm in holding hands as long as he's satisfied with that. (2)—I hope you haven't been doing that, my dear. Anybody who knew you had done it would be justified in thinking you are not a very good girl. (3)—Get some friend to introduce him to you.

(4)—A loose, wavy pompadour is fashionable now. You can part it at the side or in front a little. (5)—Yes indeed. Besides, fashionable women do not lace any more. A big waist is the style. (6)—CORN BREAD: 2 cups white flour, 2 cups corn meal, 1 cup sour milk, 2 1/2 cups sugar, 1 egg, 1/2 cup butter or any other shortening, 1 teaspoon soda. Bake in hot oven.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman of 25, have been married 11 years, have a little girl four years old. My husband drinks up everything he makes. He stays out every night late. He doesn't mistreat me or fuss, but he doesn't provide for us. He is a sport and cares only for himself. I want to do the right thing but I feel I have done my duty. What must I do? I don't believe he loves me and I haven't got much love left for him he has done so bad.

ANXIOUS.
Try to find something to do to earn money. Then, when that thing has been provided for, you are going to take the little girl away from you and support yourself. If you can't do that, take the matter to court and get an order to have part of his wages paid to you by the people he works for.

If any one should know the value of a medicine it is the retail druggist who sells it.

Therefore, when over five thousand of the best retail druggists in the country recommend Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, without oil, as the greatest tonic reconstructer and strength creator they have ever sold, it must indicate the value of Vinol.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

(By Howard L. Rann.)

The pancake is a small, round object which is served early in the day so that people can recover from the effects before dinner. It is frequently prescribed by unscrupulous physicians who wish to increase their practice, and who use it to test the durability of the digestive apparatus.

Pancakes were never heard of in this country until the Pilgrim Fathers headed in off Plymouth Rock and began to look around for a place to hold a prolonged feast.

The Indians didn't use pancakes in any form, and history tells us that they never had any stomach trouble until they made its acquaintance.

The first thing the Pilgrim Fathers did after they landed was to prepare a large batch of pancakes and chocolate several robust Indians with them. This was the real cause of the first sculpting party held for the benefit of our Puritan ancestors.

The hotel pancake is a deadly weapon which is about as hard to digest as a ten-penny nail. Nobody has ever discovered the ingredients of this article, so that the recipient will not be discouraged and leave the table.

Some hotels advertise that they put a buckwheat filler in their pancakes, but as buckwheat is not used in making sole leather few people believe it.

The best pancake is that which is made at home from materials which can be studied at close range. After a woman has stood over a hot stove and flipped pancakes for a double-chinned husband and seven averagions sons, she will not eat another one.

Mother always gets to breakfast just in time to see the last pancake disappear in a melodious gulp.

Pancakes are usually served in company with pure Vermont maple syrup, which tastes so much like brown sugar and New Orleans sorghum that people look it sternly in the eye while pouring it. The maple syrup used at restaurants is always carefully diluted with fillies and other debris before serving.

Who was it first invented kraut, and put it in a barrel? Some scientist should find it out, and deck his tomb with laurel. For kraut's a good old honest dish, and when, with eager talons, we throw it in our holds, we wish that we could eat three gallons.

For sauerkraut's savory and clean, and not the least corrody, and in contains no nicotine, or benjamin of sody. I always give a joyous shout, glad are my feelings inner, when grandma says she'll cook some kraut (with other things) for dinner. And towards the stove, throughout the day, with anxious eyes I'm looking, and neighbors know just what's a-cooking.

SAUER- know just what's a-cooking. KRAUT The license that you read about around the dump is groggy when grandma cooks a mess of kraut and leaves the windows open. I see the neighbors going by, they sniff the sauerkraut hollin, and often I can hear them sigh: "For kraut I'm fairly spoiling!" Ah, sauerkraut is a noble dish, beloved of wise old fogies! And why do foolish people wish their weed in plugs or stogies?

The STOLEN SINGER

by MARTNA BELLINGER

COPYRIGHT 1913 THE DOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

Later he had got a little bucket, used for bailing out the rowboat, and dashed hurriedly into the thicket above after some tinkling cowbells. Though she was too tired to question him, Agatha supposed he had tied one of the cows to a tree, since he returned three or four times to fill the pail. What a wonderful life-giver milk was! She had drunk her fill and had tried to feed it to James, who at first tasted eagerly, but had, on the whole, taken very little. He was only partly awake, but he shivered and weakly murmured that he was cold. Agatha quickly grew stronger; and she and Hand set to work to prepare the fire and the bed. Almost while they were at this labor, the sun had gone down.

Sitting by Jim's couch, Agatha grew sleepy and cold, but there were no more coverings. Hand's coat was over Jim, and as Agatha herself felt the cold more keenly she tucked it closer about him. Alone as she was now, in solitude with this man who had saved her from the waters, with darkness and the night again coming on, her spirit shrank; not so much from fear, as from that premonition of the future which now and then assails the human breast.

As she knelt by Jim's side, covering his feet with the coat and heaping the fir boughs over him, she paused to look at his unconscious face. She knew now that he did not belong to the crew of the Jeanne D'Arc; but of his outward circumstances she knew nothing more. Thirty she guessed him to be, thereby coming within four years of the truth. His short mustache concealed his mouth, and his eyes were closed. It was almost like looking at the mask of a face. The rough beard of a week's growth made a deep shadow over the lower part of his face; and yet, behind the mask, she thought she could see some token of a real man, not without his attributes of divinity. In the ordeal of the night before he had shown the highest order of patience, endurance and courage, together with a sweetness of temper that was itself lovable. But beyond this, what sort of man was he? Agatha could not tell. She had seen many men of many types, and perhaps she recognized James as belonging to a type; but if so, it was the type that stands for the best of New England stock. In the centuries back it may have brought forth fanatics and extremists; at times it may have built up its narrow walls of prejudice and pride; but at the core it was sound and manly, and responsive to the call of the spirit.

Something of all this passed through Agatha's mind, as she tried to read Jim's face; then, as he stirred uneasily and tried to throw off the light boughs that she had spread over him, she got up and went to the edge of the water to moisten afresh the bandage for his forehead. Involuntarily she shuddered at sight of the dark water, though the lapping waves, pushing up farther and farther with the incoming tide, were gentle enough to soothe a child.

She hurried back to Jim's couch and laid the cooling compress across his forehead. The balsam boughs about them breathed their fragrance on the night air, and the pleasant gloom rested their tired eyes. Gradually he quieted down again; his restlessness ceased. The long twilight deepened into darkness, or rather into that thin luminous blue shade which is the darkness of starlit summer nights. The sea washed the beach with its murmuring caress; somewhere in the thicket above a night-bird called.

In a cranny of the rocks Agatha hollowed out the sand, still warm beneath the surface where the sun had lain on it through long summer days, and made for herself a bed and coverlet and pillow all at once. With the sand piled around and over her, she could not really suffer; and she was mortally tired.

She looked up toward the clear stars, Vega and the jeweled cross almost in the zenith, and ruddy Antares in the body of the shining Scorpion. They were watching her, she thought, tonight in her peace as they had watched her last night in her struggle, and as they would watch after all her days and nights were done. And then she thought no more. Sleep, blessed gift, descended upon her.

CHAPTER X.

The Heart of Youth.

"Agatha Redmond, can you hear me?"

She caught the voice faintly, as if it were a child's cry.

"I'm right here, yes; only wait just a second." She could not instantly free herself from her sandy coverings, but she was wide awake almost at the first words James had spoken. Faint as the voice had been, she recognized the natural tones, the strongest he had uttered since coming out of the water.

The night had grown cold and dark, and at first she was a trifle bewildered. She was also stiff and sore, almost beyond bearing. She had to creep along the sand to where Jim lay. The fire had burned wholly out, and the sand felt damp as she crawled over it. When she came near, she reached out her hand and laid it on Jim's forehead. He was shivering with cold.

"You poor man! And I sleeping while I ought to be taking care of you! I'll make the fire and get some milk; there is still a little left." As she tried to make her aching bones limp her to her feet, she became aware that the man was fumbling at his coverings and trying to say something. She bent down to hear his words, which were incredibly faint.

"I don't want any fire or any milk. I only wanted to know if you were there," he said childishly, as if ashamed of his childishness.

She leaned over him, speaking gently and touching his head softly with her firm, cold hands.

"You're a little better now, aren't you, after your sleep? Don't you feel a little stronger?"

"Yes, I'm better, lots better," he whispered. "I must have been sleeping for ages. When I woke up I thought I had a beastly chill or something; but I'm all right now; only suddenly I felt as if I must know if you were there, and if it was you."

He smiled at his own words, and Agatha was reassured.

"I think you'll be still better for a little while," she said, and crept away to get the pail, which had been hidden on a shelf of rock. When she came back with it, James tried manfully to sit up; but Agatha slipped an arm under his neck, in skilful nurse fashion, and held the bucket while he drank, almost greedily. As he sank back on his bed he whispered: "You are very good to take care of me."

"Oh, no; I'm only too glad! And now I'm going to build up the fire again; your hands are quite cold."

"No, don't go," he pleaded. "Please stay here; I'm not cold any more. And you must go to sleep again. I ought not to have awakened you; and, really, I didn't mean to."

"Yes, you ought. I've had lots of sleep; I don't want any more."

"It's dark, but it's better than that that other night, isn't it?" said James.

"Much better," answered Agatha. James visibly gathered strength from the milk, and presently he took some more. Agatha watched, and when he had finished, patted him approvingly on the hand. "Good boy! You've done very well," she cried.

"I was so thirsty. I thought the whole earth had run dry. Will you think me very ungrateful if I say now I wish it had been water?"

"Oh, no; I wish so, too. But Mr. Hand could only get us a little bit from a spring, for there isn't any other pail."

It was some time before Jim made out to inquire, "Who's Mr. Hand?"

"He's the man that helped us—out of the water—when we became 'exhausted.'"

Agatha hesitated to speak of the night's experience, uncertain how far Jim's memory carried him, and not knowing how a sick man, in his weakness, might be affected. Still, now that he seemed almost himself again, save for the chill, she ventured to refer to the event, speaking in a matter-of-fact way, as if such endurance tests were the most natural events in the world. James' speech was quite coherent and distinct, but very slow, as if the efforts to speak came from the depths of a profound fatigue.

"Hand—that's a good name for him. I thought it was the hand of God, which plucked me, like David, or Jonah, or some such person, out of the seething billows. But I didn't think of there being a man behind." Then, after a long silence, "Where is he?"

"He's gone off to find somebody to help us get away from here; a carriage or wagon of some sort, and some food and clothes."

Something caused Jim to ejaculate, though quite feebly, "You poor thing!" And then he asked, very slowly, "Where is there?"

"I don't know; and Mr. Hand doesn't know."

"And we've lost our tags," laughed Jim faintly.

Agatha couldn't resist the laugh, though the weakness in Jim's voice was almost enough to make her weep as well.

"Yes, we've lost our tags, more's the pity. Mr. Hand thinks we're either on the coast of Maine, or on an island somewhere near the coast. I myself think it must at least be Nova Scotia, or possibly Newfoundland. But Hand will find out and be back soon, and then we'll get away from here and go to some place where we'll all be comfortable."

Agatha stole away, and with much difficulty succeeded in kindling the fire again. She tended it until a good steady heat spread over the rocks, and then returned to James. She curled up, half sitting, half lying, against the rocks.

Clouds had risen during the recent hours, and it was much darker than the night before had been. The ocean, washing its million pebbles up on the little beach, moaned and complained incessantly. In the long interval between their talk, Agatha's head would fall, her eyes would close, and she would almost sleep; but an undercurrent of anxiety concerning her companion kept her always at the edge of consciousness. James himself appeared to have no desire to sleep. He was trying to piece together, in his mind, his conscious and unconscious memories. At last he said:

"I guess I haven't been much good—for a while—have I?"

Agatha considered before replying. "You were quite exhausted, I think; and we feared you might be ill."

"And Handy Andy got my job?" She laughed outright at this, as much for the feeling of reassurance it gave her as for the jest itself.

"Handy Andy certainly had a job, with us two on his hands!" she laughed.

"I bet he did!" cried James, with more vigor than he had shown before. "He's a great man; I'm for him! When's he coming back?"

"Early in the morning, I hope," said Agatha, swallowing her misgivings.

"That's good," said James. "I think I'll be about and good for something myself by that time."

There was another long pause, so long that Agatha thought James must have gone to sleep again. He thought likewise of her, it appeared; for when he next spoke it was in a careful whisper:

"Are you still awake, Agatha Redmond?"

"Yes, indeed; quite. Do you want anything?"

"Yes, a number of things. First, are you quite recovered from the trouble—that night's awful trouble?" He seemed to be wholly lost as to time. "Did you come off without any serious injury? Do you look like yourself, strong and rosy-cheeked again?"

Agatha replied heartily to this, and her answer appeared to satisfy James for the moment. "Though," she added, "here in the dark, who can tell whether I have rosy cheeks or not?"

"True!" sighed James, but his sigh was not an unhappy one. Presently he began once more: "I want to know, too, if you weren't surprised that I knew your name?"

"Well, yes a little, when I had time to think about it. How did you know it?"

James laughed. I meant to keep it a secret, always; but I guess I'll tell after all—just you. I got it from the program, that Sunday, you know."

"Ah, yes, I understand." She didn't quite understand, at first; for there had been other Sundays and other songs. But she could not weary him now with questions.

As they lay there the slow, monotonous murmur of the sea made a deep accompaniment to their words. It was near, and yet immeasurably far, filling the universe with its soft but insistent sound and echoes of sound. At the back of her mind, Agatha heard it always, low, threatening, and strong; but on the surface of her thoughts, she was trying to decide what she ought to do. She was thinking whether she might question her companion a little concerning himself, when he answered her, in part, of his own accord.

"You couldn't know who I am, of course. James Hambleton, of Lynn. Jim, Jimmy, Jimsy, Bud—I'm called most anything. But I wanted to tell you—in fact, that's what I waked up expressly for—I wanted to tell you."

He paused so long, that Agatha leaned over, trying to see his face. The violence of the chill had passed. His eyes were wide open, his face alarmingly pale. She felt a sudden quail of pain, lest illness and exhaustion had wrought havoc in his frame deeper than she knew. But as she bent over him, his features lighted up with his rare smile—an expression full of happiness and peace. He lifted a hand, feebly, and she took it in both her own. She felt that thus, hand in hand, they were nearer; that thus she could better be of help to him.

"I wanted to tell you," he began again, "that whatever happens, I'm glad I did it."

"Did what, dear friend?" questioned Agatha, thinking in her heart that the fever had set his wits to wandering.

"Glad I followed the Face and the Voice," he answered feebly. Agatha watched him closely, torn with anxiety. She couldn't bear to see him suffer—this man who had so suddenly become a friend, who had been so brave and unselfish for her sake, who had been so cheerful throughout their night of trouble.

"I told old Aleck," James went on, "that I'd have to jump the fence; but that was ages ago. I've been harried down so long that I thought I'd gone to sleep, sure enough." Agatha thought certainly that now he was delicious, but she had no heart to stop his gentle earnestness. He went on: "But you woke me up. And I wouldn't have missed this last run, not for anything. 'Twas a great night, that night on the water, with you; and whatever happens, I shall always think that worth living for; yes, well worth living for."

CONSISTENCY

"Sweet and low, low and sweet; Over the roof tops and over the street; Running so blithely her daddy to greet."

All on that rainy Sunday.

I. She wanted to be particularly nice to him that night, so she made him an angel cake. It was her first angel cake, though she had made several crullers.

II. "Delicious! Exquisite! Extremely!" he told her as he devoured the seventh slice. In all (for it was a cake that sliced well) there were seventeen slices.

"Hah! some more?" she invited in her irresistible French, and he took his eighth slice, and his ninth, and his tenth.

Just before he took his hat, and his departure he took his twelfth. Always excepting the several crullers, it was her first angel cake.

III. At precisely 4.42 o'clock the following morning he was an angel.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY Your affairs will be unsettled and something unpleasant will occur in consequence. Journeys and changes are unfavorable. But some cheerful recreation will help to calm the mind and enable it to see the best course.

Those born today will be restless and dissatisfied. In seeking excitement they will make the acquaintance of evil. Active outdoor play with cheerful companions and a training philosophic, rather than sectarian, is safest for these children.

Too Transparent a Boast. When a man pretends that he doesn't care what the papers say about him it is a sign that they are not giving him much praise.

Bilious? One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime—just one. Acts on the liver. Gently laxative. Sugar-coated. All vegetable. Sold for 60 years.

BRANCH OFFICE FOR GAZETTE AT BAKER & SON.

Copy for classified advertisements, orders for papers, subscriptions and matters of this nature, as well as items of news may be left at the Baker Drug Store, and will receive the same prompt attention as if they were sent direct to the office.

Either telephone line number 19 will reach the Baker Drug Store if it is desired to call them in connection with The Gazette's business.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns, fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted.

All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper, and find its way into the columns.

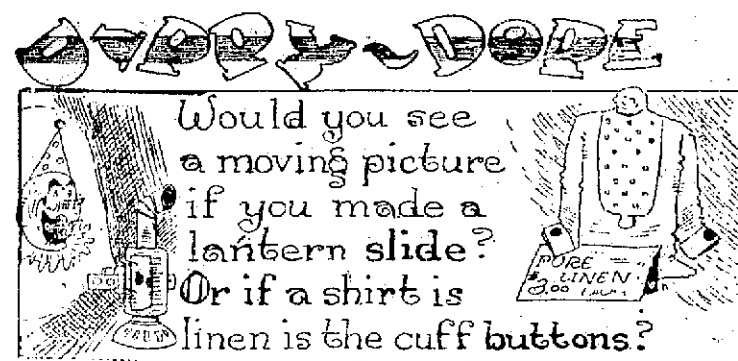

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Feb. 19, 1873.—Rev. Dr. Fowler, president of the Northwestern Institute, Evanston, will lecture at the first M. E. church on Friday evening of this week, taking for his subject, "The Coming Woman." Dr. Fowler delivered a highly instructive discourse at the Court street church a short time ago which was received with gratification by a large audience which gathered to listen to his words of wisdom. His subject on that occasion, "Does Thinking Pay?" was ably handled and we do not doubt that he will advance interesting arguments and instructive suggestions on next Friday's popular text.

Tomorrow night the Verceil Sisters will delight the people of Janesville with their musical entertainment at the opera house. The vocal combination effected by these three young ladies has drawn the most favorable comments from the critics of the large cities and it is safe to promise the people a concert of unusual merit tomorrow night.

The fire department committee is causing the construction of a platform in front of the west entrance of the fire station for the use of the steamers in that locality. The prospective spring election is beginning to agitate the thoughts of persons ambitious for positions.
